> how to use this manual

This manual is particularly aimed at professionals in the tourism and events sectors looking to organise group trips to the Principality of Monaco. It is designed to make it easier for you to find the parking and access information you need for your trip, and to provide details of the applicable prices for groups. Should you require further information, please feel free to contact the managers for each site.

To help you get the very best from your visit to the Principality of Monaco and its cultural and tourist sites, we have also included a selection of restaurants which cater for groups, as well as highlights of the main events organised in the Principality throughout the year.

Along with a selection of practical information, you will also find a reply coupon included in this manual. We would appreciate it if you could send this back to us along with details of any possible suggestions that you may have. This coupon can also be used to request additional brochures. Finally, during the year you will receive a supplement listing the new features or latest news from the various tourist sites and attractions.

> The Principality of Monaco: an independent sovereign state

Although the Principality of Monaco is one of the smallest states in Europe, it is nevertheless a fully fledged member of the United Nations.

This independence, which has been undisputedly recognised since the 16th century, was won and retained thanks to the intelligence, the courage and the tenacity of the Grimaldi dynasty which has reigned over the rock for more than 700 years!

Monaco's admission to the Council of Europe in 2004 further underlined this independence. Prince Rainier III died in April 2005. His son, Albert II is the new Sovereign.

> A thriving economy

Despite the country's small surface area (195ha) and its lack of natural resources, during the last 30 years under the leadership of Prince Rainier III the Principality of Monaco has enjoyed an economic boom which has been as consistent as it has been remarkable, marked by a determined investment and major construction policy. The royal government has encouraged the development of a range of light, non-polluting industries which blend in perfectly with the urban fabric of the Principality.

The tertiary sector has also enjoyed strong growth in the financial field and for services, with a high degree of diversification including the new technologies and the telecommunications industry.

Finally, the medical sector is well represented here thanks to state-of-the-art facilities including the Princess Grace Hospital, the Hemodialysis Centre, the Medical Imaging Centre, the Cardio-Thoracic Centre not forgetting the Institut Monégasque de Médecine du Sport.

> Geographical location

Located at the far end of France's south-eastern coast, the Principality of Monaco occupies a narrow coastal strip running for 4.4 km alongside the Mediterranean, at the foot of the southern Alps.

Monaco's current surface area stands at 195 hectares (1.95 km²), of which 31 hectares have been gained at the expense of the sea!

Its particularly mild and temperate climate and its outstanding levels of sunshine (more than 300 days per year) make this the perfect location for visits and tourism.

> General information

The last population census carried out in 2000 showed that the Principality had 32,020 residents, of which more than 81% were foreigners (with French people accounting for almost 32% of the total population). There are approximately 7000 "nationals" (known as Monegasques). The official language is French, although Italian and English are also widely spoken and understood. The native Monegasque language is an extremely colourful dialect used by the "old time" nationals, but which is now once again increasingly being studied in the Principality's schools.

The currency unit is the euro. Monegasque coins with the same value as the French ones are also in circulation.

The state religion is Catholicism, although freedom of worship is guaranteed by the Constitution (the Anglican, Baha'i, Jewish and Protestant faiths are all represented in the Principality).

The royal motto is "Deo Juvante" (With the Help of God).

The country's national holiday is celebrated on November 19th.

> BY PLANE

Monaco is easy to get to from wherever you may be in the world, both by road (via the E80 Barcelona-Milan motorway) or by air. Nice Côte d'Azur airport is only 25 km from Monaco, placing it within a 6-minute ride via the helicopter shuttle service. The helicopters operate 7 days a week, providing connections to the national and international flight services (with almost 70 daily flights).

A regular coach service also operates between the two airports and the Principality of Monaco via the A8 motorway (travel time: approximately 50 minutes).

> BY TRAIN

Thanks to its new geographical location, the Monaco Monte-Carlo underground railway station (at 540 metres in length and equipped with a state-of-the-art security system) has four pedestrian exits equipped with lifts and moving walkways, facilitating connections with the urban and intercity transport networks. All trains stop at Monaco:

- The TGV (high-speed trains) travelling to and from Paris.
- The day trains travelling to Milan, Genoa and Basel.
- The night trains travelling to Strasbourg, Paris, Toulouse, Irun, Port-Bouc, Milan, Venice, Pisa and Rome.
- The Regional Express Trains (TER) which operate between the towns along the French Riviera.

> BY SEA

As a modern maritime centre, the Principality of Monaco has two harbours laid out on either side of the Rocher des Grimaldi:

- Port Hercule is the only deep water port on the Riviera enjoying a town centre location. Its wide 16-hectare turning basin (with a depth of between 7 and 20 m) and its new semi floating sea wall featuring a groundbreaking design and a length of 350 m, make it possible to receive vessels of up to 240 metres in length or 2 separate vessels whose total overall length does not exceed 300 m.

At a length of 40 metres, the tender quay is reserved for the tenders of cruise liners mooring in the harbour when weather permits this.

The disembarkation area for passengers on the harbour platform has parking for tourist coaches. Disabled access.

> Access for tourist coaches in the Principality

The limited space available in the Principality has led the public authorities to take a number of measures concerning access to, departures from, and travel between the public car parks.

The circulation and parking of tourist coaches in the Principality is subject to regulations drawn up to manage not only local traffic but also individual tourist vehicles with a view to avoiding the main urban roadways and car parks becoming clogged, while at the same time seeking to protect the local environment.

Coaches must always enter Monaco via the RN7 (also known as the "Moyenne Corniche") and travel directly to the "Centre de Régulation" (marshalling centre) for coaches, which is situated at the Jardin Exotique (Exotic Gardens) on the western edge of the Principality.

> Coach traffic and parking procedures

The computerised traffic and parking administration system offers an effective response to the problems caused by traffic congestion in the town and the parking areas.

Using this procedure, the "marshalling centre" at the Jardin Exotique issues the coach with a marshalling number upon arrival, in addition to a secret code enabling it to enter and leave the car parks.

At the same time, the "marshalling centre" also takes your payment for parking, based on a price list shown on the following pages.

You may only pass through the Principality of Monaco (transit) between 7 pm and 8 am.

> Tourist coach parking areas

- Use the "Exotic Garden" (Jardin Exotique) car park for visits to the Exotic Garden, to the Observatory Caves and to the Museum of Prehistoric Anthropology

Free parking for a maximum of 2 hours with no other travel/stops within the Principality.

- Use the Chemin-des-Pêcheurs car park for visits to Monaco-Ville, to the Prince's Palace, to the cathedral, to the Saint-Martin and Sainte-Barbe Gardens, to the Napoleonic History Museum and the Palace's Collection of Historical Archives, to the Museum of Oceanography and the Aquarium, to the Museum of the Chapel of the Visitation (the Barbara Piasecka Johnson collection), and to the Monte-Carlo Story.

- Additionally, in the district of Fontvieille you can visit the Zoological Gardens, the exhibition of the car collection belonging to H.S.H. The Prince of Monaco, the Naval Museum, the Museum of Stamps and Coins, the Louis II stadium, the Fontvieille Landscaped Gardens and the Princess Grace rose garden...

However, there are no opportunities for parking near the Fontvieille tourist attractions (except for dispensation by the "Sûreté Publique" – parking on the "Bailey Bridge" public road).

- Use the Grimaldi Forum Monaco car park for visits to the district of Monte-Carlo, to the Casino, to its gardens and terraces, to the New National Museum of Monaco, Villa Sauber, to the Japanese Garden, to the beaches...

The State Apartments at the Prince's Palace

As a poignant symbol of the Principality's sovereignty, the Palais des Princes de Monaco is a private residence and a genuine "living palace" thanks to the presence of the Monaco's ruling Prince who continues to live there all year round. The state apartments can be visited throughout most of the year. Faithfully preserving a centuries-old tradition, this palace was built in its unique location on the site of a fortress originally created by the Genoese in 1215. A visit to the palace offers you an unforgettable journey back through history, from the days of the Guelphs and the Gibelins up to the Napoleonic era. The palace can still be admired today in all of its original splendour including:

- Its Italian style gallery running along the southern facade, the "Grands Appartements" (state apartments), and the marvellous frescoes painted by Genoese artists in the 16th century featuring a number of mythological scenes.
- The Louis XV room,
- The Mazarin room,
- The Throne Room featuring a huge Renaissance fireplace where major celebrations and historical ceremonies have been held since the 16th century,
- The Sainte Marie Tower,
- The Royal Courtyard.

The Oceanographic Museum and Aquarium

"Protecting, loving and informing on the oceans"

Opposite the Mediterranean, on the Grimaldi rock, the Oceanographic Museum is an exceptional place not to be missed. In this establishment dedicated to the marine world; history and topical science complement each other wonderfully. Other three floors and set in outstanding architecture where the Arts hold an important place, the visitor is invited to follow in the footsteps of a learned Prince, Founder of this unconventional Museum and a pioneer in modern oceanography, Albert Ist of Monaco (1848-1922).

On the first floor, in the physical Oceanography Room, the exhibition "The Career of an Explorer" retraces this journey. It serves as the main focus for discovering and understanding the subjects and origin of the major current themes studied in modern oceanography. In the Applied Oceanography Room, between exploration, arts and science, the visit is punctuated by impressive collection pieces, set off by the space in these majestic rooms where the models and large skeletons of marine mammals, including that of a recently hung 20m long fin whale, assume their full size.

On the ground floor, the temporary exhibitions provide other points of interest, like the live activities presented by scientific presenters or the films screened in the conference rooms. In the summer season, an original activity "The Aquarium Nursery" is offered to the public.

In the basement, the Aquarium is one of the highlights of the visit. The ecosystems living in the Mediterranean and tropical seas, presented in a realistic setting with an expertise recognised all over the world, raises visitors' awareness to the sustainable management of the Ocean. The Shark lagoon, a true technical and biological feat, reveals the extraordinary beauty and diversity of coral reefs and the living creatures that populate them in a giant 450m³ pool. To conclude this passionate visit, the terrace and its restaurant offer an uninterrupted view over the Great Blue Sea and the Principality. On March 29th 2010 the museum will be celebrating its Centenary with a bumper year of events. Everyone is invited to celebrate this exceptional anniversary!

Casino de Monte-Carlo

It was built in 1866 then extended by Charles Garnier, the architect of the Paris Opera house in 1878.

You can visit the Atrium paved with marble, surrounded by 28 ionic columns giving access to the Opera Hall called "Salle Garnier" which has been entirely redecorated.

A profusion of bas-reliefs, frescos and sculptures are added to the magnificence of its red and gold décor. For more than a century, its stage has been the setting for international operatic creations, prestigious concerts, and exceptional ballets.

The gaming rooms are made up of a vast series of linked rooms with stained glass windows, marvellously decorated with sculptures, allegorical paintings and bronze lights:

The range of European table games on offer here is unique in the world.

New National Museum of Monaco - Villa Sauber

Villa Sauber, a splendid Belle-Époque style home, is presenting until 30 April 2011 the exhibition Looking up...™ Yinka Shonibare, MBE, a dialogue between the imaginative world of Monaco's performing arts collections and an Anglo-Nigerian artist's universe. The Villa, one of the NMNM's two exhibition areas with Villa Paloma (near the Exotic Garden), explores the theme of Art and Performance. This temporary exhibition associates contemporary creation and the collections inherited from the Principality's Fine Arts Museum, closed in 1958, with model stage sets and over 4,000 ballet and opera costumes from the Société des Bains de Mer's permanent collections. The garden is open to the public.

visits V Exotic Garden

Please refer to the access and travel maps for the Principality of Monaco shown at the beginning of the brochure.

The Exotic Garden, the Observatory Caves and the Museum of Prehistoric Anthropology

An amazing site where you can discover some truly astonishing plant varieties.

A genuine "Garden of Eden" for succulent plant varieties, this garden laid out on the flanks of the rocky hillside offers an uninterrupted view over the Principality of Monaco and over the French and Italian Rivas.

Covering a total of 11,500 sq.m., this municipal garden was opened in 1933 by Prince Louis II. It is the crowning glory of a collection of succulent plants which was originally launched in 1895, coupled with an ambitious landscaping programme.

The walkways and arches make it possible for you to walk around at your leisure as you discover these huge and remarkable plants. The 2,400 hours of sunshine each year guarantee flowers with a wide range of colours and sizes throughout the year. The cacti flowering from springtime until summer are followed by the Euphorbias during the autumn. During the winter, this colourful display ends with the red plumes of the various Aloes.

The Echinocactus grusonii ("Mother-in-Law's Cushion"), huge cereus plants, the Madagascan Euphorbia and the Mexican Agaves all share this magical setting. The attractive carpet of Senecio serpens, the forest of tree-like Opuntia gradually lead you to the entrance to the Observatory caves.

In the cave, a surprising sight awaits visitors, as it is literally full of stalactites, stalagmites, hanging rock features and concretions.

Your visit ends with a not-to-be-missed trip into the Museum of Prehistoric Anthropology, which presents the key stages in mankind's development and a thrilling trip back in time which never fails to delight young and old alike.

New National Museum of Monaco - Villa Paloma

Villa Paloma opened on 18 September 2010. It is the New National Museum of Monaco's second exhibition area with Villa Sauber (Larvotto district).

Long a family home before becoming an exhibition venue, it is dedicated to the theme of Art and Territory. It stands in one of the Principality's last 'green lungs,' ideal for exploring the notion of landscape linked to Nature and its representations. This site organises temporary exhibitions, thereby offering opportunities for developing various fine-quality artistic projects associating modern and contemporary art, architecture, design...

Villa Paloma's garden provides an ideal setting, having preserved its Italian style garden, a balcony overlooking the sea and the city respecting the existing vegetation. It connects with Parc Princesse Antoinette, the Museum of Prehistoric Anthropology and the Exotic Garden and its unique panorama over the Principality.

The Museum of Stamps and Coins

The museum of stamps and coins presents the philatelic and numismatic collections of H.S.H. the Prince of Monaco, ranging from the very first Monegasque coins minted in 1641 and Monaco's first stamps produced in 1885, underlining the importance of these two vital symbols of sovereignty, often seen as "a country's first ambassadors".

Thanks to the historical displays and to the themes presented in chronological order, visitors can discover the history of the Principality, its past alliances and its key aspects, and also admire some outstanding postal documents on show in the Rare Stamps Room.

A 20-minute film describes the history of the various postal systems used in Monaco and reveals the techniques behind the printing and marketing of stamps. A computerised information terminal allows visitors to consult the leading encyclopaedic database of Monegasque stamps and currency.

The Naval Museum

A fascinating maritime adventure! Located in the very heart of Monaco, the Naval Museum includes an outstanding collection of more than 250 model boats in addition to paintings and other marine items, plus a number of antique models on loan from Prince Rainier III of Monaco's superb private collection. Among the most notable items on show you can discover a funeral barge found in an Egyptian tomb, vessels from ancient Greece and Rome, or world-renowned cruise liners such as the Titanic and La France. The museum also includes models of training ships such as the Amerigo Vespucci and the Belem, not forgetting a wide range of warships, from the Jeanne d'Arc to the battleship Missouri, in addition to a number of impressive aircraft carriers such as the amazing model of the Nimitz measuring more than 5 metres in length, and numerous submarines of all nationalities. Also on show here, you will find a sinker mine and the Maiale, a "human torpedo" submarine from the Second World War.

> major events during the year

Throughout the year, the Principality of Monaco is the scene of a huge number of events and festivities of all kinds, whether of the artistic, cultural or sporting variety.

Some of the world's greatest names in fields such as music, dance, the lyrical arts and the theatre perform here in Monaco.

Thanks to the traditional Monte-Carlo car rally and the spectacular Formula One Grand Prix held in the very streets of the town, or the Masters Series tennis tournaments, those looking for excitement will certainly not be disappointed in Monaco!

The fun and festivities also continue with the Principality's major exhibitions, the spectacular charity galas and the International Circus Festival. Monaco is extremely proud to be able to offer its visitors such a wealth of prestigious events.

> The Monte-Carlo International Circus Festival

JANUARY

Every year some of the world's leading circus artists gather together at the Espace Fontvieille under a sparkling big top where you will find no shortage of fun, laughter and excitement, not forgetting those key values of dignity and tradition.

> The telephone system

When calling Monaco from any country abroad

(including France and its overseas departments and territories):

dial the international access number followed by the code

"377" for the Principality, followed by the 8 figures of your correspondent's telephone number.

When calling a telephone number abroad from within Monaco

dial 00 + the country code + the area code followed by your correspondent's telephone number

(there is a pause of several seconds before you will hear an engaged tone).

Prices:

telephone calls within Monaco are charged in units of three minutes at standard rate, with the unit length varying according to the time of day. The price of calls to France or abroad varies based on the length of your call and the destination (with reduced rates at certain times, at night, on Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays).

Please see the Principality's telephone directory for full details).

Phone cards are on sale at the post office and in tobacconists' shops. These enable you to call from most of the public call boxes, which are also equipped for payment by credit card if you prefer.

> Television

In addition to the French and Italian channels, the Principality's cable network also makes it possible to receive certain British, American, German and Spanish channels.
